

Visual Modeling for Information

Homework 3

Objective

One of the topics we need to cover is "Describing data visualization." The objective of this task will be exactly that.

In a previous class, we reviewed an example of charts about first motherhood in two different years. This example belongs to the "What's Going On in This Graph?" Section of "The New York Times."

The activity will consist of reviewing the catalog of graphics in that section, selecting an example, and completing the entire exercise.

In this video you can review the context and instructions for the exercise:

Instructions

As explained in the video, the exercise should cover the following points:

1. What do you notice?
2. What do you wonder?
3. What impact does this have on you and your community?
4. What's going on in this graph? Write a catchy headline that captures the graph's main idea.

Homework Submission
